THE HOUSE OF PRAYER. The Sun in darkness hides, The day lies down to rest, The troubled waves sabside, Calm on the ocean's breast. Man lays his busy cares away, To rest awhile, from trouble free! Then to the house of prayer, The weary fainting one,

Tired of the noise and care Of earth, has learned to come And, like the dove of Noah, seek, A place to rest his weary feet. Long has he been restrained, Within the ark's dull gloom, Long has the world detained, His soul away from home, But here, above the sea of strife, The olive grows, the tree of life! Eager! some promise takes,

Back to the world in haste, He bears his message free, To tell them of a land of peace, Where earth's dull cares forever cease.
